

Jennifer Bartlett

Executive Director | Educational Leader | Equity Advocate

Jennifer Bartlett is a leader whose career bridges the worlds of education, arts administration, and community development. Currently serving as the Executive Director of Under the Spire, a celebrated summer-long concert series in rural Prince Edward Island, Jennifer leads the organization with vision and care—overseeing all operations. Her commitment to inclusion and the preservation of cultural heritage drives her work in stewarding one of Prince Edward Island’s most beautiful and historic venues.

Before relocating to PEI, Jennifer had a distinguished 20-year career with the Calgary Board of Education, where she served in a range of progressive leadership roles, including teacher, strategist, Assistant Principal, and Principal across multiple school settings. A trusted educational leader, Jennifer supported diverse student populations through academic advising, inclusive programming, crisis response, and curriculum development. She championed student voice by coaching debate, facilitating GSA and diversity councils, and promoting literacy and reconciliation across disciplines.

Jennifer holds a Master of Arts in Classics from the University of Calgary, where she also earned her Bachelor of Education. She completed dual Bachelor of Arts degrees at Brock University in History and Classics, with a minor in English Literature. Her passion for learning extends beyond the classroom; she has published educational articles and delivered presentations on inclusive literature, staff wellness, and equity in education.
